About the SURF Awards

The SURF Awards for Best Practice in Community Regeneration are organised and delivered by SURF in partnership with the Scottish Government.

The purpose of the SURF Awards process is:

- To recognise and reward best practice in community regeneration;
- To promote and disseminate best practice across Scotland as means of sharing knowledge and experience, and thereby enhancing future policy and practice;
- To highlight the role that regeneration projects have in improving the wellbeing of individuals and communities.

The SURF Awards are open to any project or initiative, taking place in Scotland, which is currently in place or which has been completed within two years of the closing date.

Why You Should Enter

Demonstrating Value

The SURF Awards are widely recognised as the most prestigious in the field of Scottish community regeneration. Past winning and shortlisted projects report that recognition in the SURF Awards process has been beneficial in demonstrating their success and value to partner bodies and funding agencies.

Recognition and Team Building

The SURF Awards process is helpful in increasing wider awareness of the often underappreciated hard work that goes into regeneration projects large and small. It also supports team-building by recognising the contribution of partners, management, staff and volunteers.

Showcasing Success

Winning projects in each of five award categories will be presented with a certificate from a leading Scottish Government Minister at a high-profile celebratory dinner event on Thursday 5th December in Glasgow. Winning projects will also be showcased in a variety of SURF and Scottish Government events, publications and online channels in 2020.

National Profile

A special SURF Awards publication will highlight all shortlisted entries. It will be widely distributed to over 3000 regeneration stakeholders and key policy-makers across Scotland.

About SURF

As Scotland’s Regeneration Forum, SURF uses its extensive cross-sector membership of over 280 organisations to explore current practice, experience and knowledge in community regeneration. SURF provides many opportunities for the sharing of information and ideas through its annual programme of events, research, publications and informal networking.

The outcomes of this interactive process are used to inform and influence the development of more successful regeneration policy and practice. SURF does this through its links with relevant networks and policy-makers in national and local government and other regeneration related agencies.

About the Judging Panel

Applications to the 2019 SURF Awards will be assessed by an experienced and independent panel of 20 judges, four per category. They are selected from national bodies and community groups that are concerned with community regeneration in Scotland. All judges give their time and expertise to the SURF Awards process generously and without remuneration.

What is Community Regeneration?

SURF takes a wide view of regeneration as encompassing social, physical, economic, ecological and cultural activities across all geographies and sectors. While each aspect can be an important part of the process, SURF believes that successful and sustainable strategies to regenerate struggling communities will be holistic and community focused. Lastly, SURF recognises the enhancement of individual and community wellbeing as the ultimate goal of any authentic regeneration process.
About the Application Process

We know that those involved in regeneration at all levels are already busy, so the SURF Awards application form and process is designed to be as brief and clear as possible.

Projects can be nominated for a SURF Award by email or post. Applications can either be self-nominated or by a third party.

Projects are only allowed to enter in one category in any given year.

The judges will wish to visit at least three shortlisted projects in each category before deciding upon an overall winner. The category winners will be announced at a celebratory awards dinner in Glasgow on the evening of Thursday 5th December 2019.

Please note that the judging panel have limited time to carry out the project visits, and therefore will specify which date they will visit the project. The visit period will take place between Mon 23rd Sept and Wednesday 30th Oct.

We will welcome and acknowledge all applications and will be able to offer limited feedback on request to projects that are not shortlisted.

Award Entry Categories

There are five categories of entry in the 2019 SURF Awards:

Scotland’s Most Improved Place (see page 4)

Housing and Regeneration (see page 5)

Supporting Youth Employability (see page 6)

Creative Regeneration (see page 7)

Community Led Regeneration (see page 8)

In making your entry, you are asked to respond directly to the judging criteria for the category you wish to enter.

How to Apply

SURF Award applications should consist only of a completed application form for the selected category.

The SURF Awards judging panel will consider how applicants respond to the specified category criteria in making their assessment. Optionally, applicants may also include a link to a project website and/or a YouTube video of up to two minutes in length.

Please do not supply any other materials or information as this will not be made available to the judges for consideration.

Category application forms are available by visiting the ‘SURF Awards’ section of the SURF website: https://www.surf.scot/surf-awards/

You can also request a hard copy by contacting the SURF staff team using the details below.

Completed application forms can be submitted by email or post. Please email completed submissions to emma@surf.scot

The closing date for applications to the 2019 SURF Awards is 5pm on Monday 2nd September 2019.

For any queries about how to submit an application for the 2019 SURF Awards, please call the SURF office on 0141 440 6392 or send an email to Emma Scott at emma@surf.scot

Much like community regeneration projects, bumblebees play an essential role in helping the communities we live in to thrive.
Scotland’s Most Improved Place

The 2019 SURF Award for Scotland’s Most Improved Place

Context – Effective place-based regeneration is a key policy priority for the Scottish Government, Scotland’s Towns Partnership, Architecture & Design Scotland, SURF and others. There is a shared interest in increased collaboration across public, private, third and community sectors to support the revitalisation of towns, villages, high streets and neighbourhoods. The practical place focus is increasingly seen as helpful in considering wider physical, social and economic challenges.

Purpose – The Scotland’s Most Improved Place 2019 SURF Awards category will identify, celebrate and share the positive impacts of participative planning and regeneration processes in Scottish places.

Scale – Entries to this category will be considered from defined places such as towns, villages, high streets and city neighbourhoods, but not wider regions or whole cities.

Criteria – Entries will be expected to demonstrate:

ENGAGEMENT:
- Effective community engagement and participation;

ENHANCED ECONOMY:
- Improved economic opportunities and engagement with the private sector;

PRACTICAL ACHIEVEMENTS:
- Benefits for local residents, workers and service users;

PHYSICAL IMPROVEMENTS:
- Such as better public spaces, access to public services, and transport & digital infrastructure;

PRIDE OF PLACE:
- Improvement in image, identity and ‘pride of place’.

A 2019 SURF Awards application form for the Scotland’s Most Improved Place category is available at the following link: https://www.surf.scot/surf-awards/
Context – The provision of appropriate, affordable, good quality housing is frequently a central element in successful regeneration efforts. The physical, economic and social impacts of housing investments have the potential to greatly enhance wider regeneration outcomes. As progressive local authorities, Housing Associations and other providers have often proved, realising those broader social benefits requires thoughtful and proactive cross sector collaboration.

Purpose – The 2019 SURF Award for Housing and Regeneration is intended to recognise and promote the achievements of all housing providers in ensuring that their investments are planned and delivered in a way which produces substantial, lasting benefits to resident communities and the shared aims of wider regeneration partners.

Criteria – Entries will be expected to demonstrate:

NEED:
- The demand for the project and the appropriateness of the response;

COOPERATION:
- Effective partnership collaboration in producing an appropriate strategy and practical outcomes;

ENGAGEMENT:
- Evidence of meaningful community engagement in the development process;

OUTCOMES:
- Evidence of wider regeneration benefits, beyond housing itself, for the area(s) and/or target community(ies);

SUSTAINABILITY:
- A realistic plan for building on the initial benefits of the development, towards its wider and longer term legacy.

Supporting Youth Employability

The 2019 SURF Award for best practice in supporting community regeneration by providing skills and employability support to help young people aged 16-29 years fulfil their potential

Context – Services that successfully support people into employment make a valuable contribution to the regeneration of places with social and economic challenges. The removal of barriers is a key component in supporting young people from excluded groups to progress into employment, training or education.

Purpose – This award will be presented to a project that supports community regeneration by providing skills and employability support to help young people aged 16-29 years fulfil their potential.

Criteria – Entries will be expected to demonstrate:

EFFECTIVENESS:
• Evidence an ability to progress participants into sustained positive destinations.

FLEXIBILITY and CREATIVITY:
• Detail flexibility, creativity and tailored support to individuals.

BARRIER REMOVAL:
• Showcase examples of the support offered which assists barrier removal and the successful progression into employment, education or training.

COLLABORATION and PARTNERSHIP:
• Evidence effective engagement with stakeholders to support participant’s progression.

SHARED LEARNING:
• Be able to evidence successful learning outcomes, models of good practice and how you share this with others.

The Supporting Youth Employability Award category is supported by Skills Development Scotland.
Creative Regeneration

The 2019 SURF Award for Best Practice in Creative Approaches to Community Regeneration

Context – Arts, culture and creativity enriches all our lives; helping tell the world who we are, bringing people together, and making an important contribution to jobs and the economy. Within this, there is a growing understanding of the contribution that creative approaches can bring to cultural, social and economic regeneration, providing new ways of working with communities to understand and address local challenges and opportunities.

Purpose – This 2019 SURF Awards category will reward best practice in placing the arts and creativity at the heart of community regeneration efforts by demonstrating effective partnership working with artists.

Criteria – Entries will be expected to demonstrate:

NEED:
• The demand for the project and how the local community will benefit in terms of creativity and wellbeing;

ENGAGEMENT:
• Substantial involvement from the community working with artists in the concept, design and delivery of a project which will benefit the participants and the wider community;

CREATIVITY:
• Creative approaches designed to celebrate the cultural and artistic ambitions that are rooted in the local community;

COOPERATION:
• Evidence of appropriate and effective partnership engagement;

OUTCOMES:
• Practical benefits from the work of the project and indications of increased community cohesion and creative ambition within the community and/or targeted area;

SUSTAINABILITY:
• A realistic strategy to develop a legacy for the project in the longer term.

The Creative Regeneration SURF Award category is supported by Creative Scotland.
Community Led Regeneration

The 2019 SURF Award for Best Practice in Community Led Regeneration

Context – Community led regeneration has long been advocated by SURF and others, as the best way of achieving more successful and sustainable local outcomes. A range of national regeneration policies and resources are now aimed at supporting and enhancing the active engagement of local people and their vital knowledge, assets and initiatives.

Purpose – This 2019 SURF Awards category will reward best practice in a regeneration project that features representatives of a community of place or theme in a leading role.

Criteria – Entries will be expected to demonstrate:

NEED:
• The demand for the project;

LOCAL LEADERSHIP:
• High level involvement of the local community in the conception, design and operation of the project;

ACTIVITY:
• Enhanced levels of participation and cohesion within the community concerned;

OUTCOMES:
• Benefits for the wider community, including positive impacts in preventing or offsetting deprivation or exclusion;

COOPERATION:
• Evidence of committed partnership activity;

SUSTAINABILITY:
• A practical vision for the viability of the project in the longer term.
